(5). TITLE.:- NEWPORT CARNIVAL.

Picture. :- So many people take part in this great carnival that one is inclined to wonder where the spectators come from. Where a score or so Roman legionaries would serve for most parades, Newport heads its big parade with a small regiment of them.

The "floats" are beautifully "turned out". This one depicts the "Ever-changing East". Continental carnival promoters can't turn out anything better than this -- or if they can, they haven't done so ! The Younger generation enters into the spirit of the thing, giving up a day of their holidays to help the hospital through a bad time. Newport always produces its annual carnival on a lavish scale, but this year it excels all its previous efforts. Look at this ! Three hundred of Newport's fairest damsels as "Daughters of the Sun". The people can hardly believe their eyes when they see so much beauty in one big bunch. I have often wondered why our cameramen are never anxious to hurry back to London when they have been to Newport on an assignment. Now I know ! Anyway, it shows they're human !

If this mighty parade doesn't loosen the purse-string's of the people, in aid of the deserving cause for which it is organized, I'll be surprised. They've paid good money to see worse shows, I'll warrant !
