TITLE. 1- KING'S HOLIDAY.

Picture.:- Wearing an Inverness cape over Highland dress, His Majesty arrives at Ballater, for what was destined to be the shortest visit to Balmoral he has ever made. The guard of honour is drawn from the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders.

Prince George, who follows his father down the ranks during the inspection, also wears Scottish dress, with a kilt of Stuart tartan. It was the intention of the -- --King and Queen to be at Balmoral for several weeks, where the Duke and Duchess of York were to join them.

The last stage of the journey to their Deeside home, was, as usual, a long triumphant drive --

--through a great cheering crowd gathered all along the road from the railway station.

However, it was not so, after all ! For, almost immediately after Their Majesties arrived at Balmoral Castle, the crisis in affairs of government became so acute that the King considered it necessary to return to London to be in closer touch with The Political Situation.
