

(5). TITLE.:- UNCLE TOM COBBLEIGH.

Picture.:- Old Uncle Tom Cobbleigh on his grey mare - or rather the modern counterparts of them - lead the way, with band in attendance, --

--through the picturesque old Devonshire village, which is known throughout the world as the setting of the famous ballad. XXXX

They are making for the fair ground, where the show of Dartmoor ponies is the feature of the day. XXXX

Children show up rather well as exhibitors of riding ponies. XXXX Their natural love for animals helps, of course.

The ponies were all wild at one time roaming the moors until starvation rendered their capture a comparatively easy matter. XXXX Now, they wouldn't go back to Dartmoor for anything - and there are others !
