

(3). TITLE:- POLICE PARADE.

Picture:- Let me present a "special" parade ! XXXX Of course, their correct title is "Police Reserve", --

--but they'll always be "Specials" to most of us ! Particularly those of us who remember their great work in days gone by ! XXXX

The great parade is attended by London's Lord Mayor, Sir William Phené Neal,--

--who remarks upon the splendid appearance of the men as he walks down the long lines to inspect them.

No less than three thousand Specials are here, for it is the one day of

(BRING IN HYMN SOFTLY)

--the year they all get together for Divine Service in the open air.

After the service the Lord Mayor presents medals--
--and challenge cups won by the Specials in the past --
--year. XXXX They really are 'Special' prizes in this instance, aren't they ?

At the conclusion the men march away just as smartly as a body--

--of guardsmen, while the Lord Mayor takes--

--the salute. XXXX There they go - three thousand good 'coppers' and every one rings true !
