

(1). TITLE:- GOING SOUTH.

Picture:- A "moving" picture of the Lancers ! XXXX They are leaving Benale Scotland--

--for Tidworth - a journey of some four-hundred miles ! Too far to walk, that's a certainty ! XXXXX The fine horses are taken to the -- --station first. XXXX They have to be made comfortable for their long and tedious--

--railway journey to the South. XXXX Whoa, there ! XXXXX Whoa !

It's funny how a horse always suspects a trap, in these-- circumstances, but the "moke mascot" of the Regiment doesn't care either way !

The Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders "play the men" to the station. XXXX

BRING UP BAGPIPES TO END OF SHOT
& TAKE TO BACKGROUND FOR NEXT SHOT.

Those bag-pipes might be playing "good riddance" to the Lancers instead of "good luck", for all I could tell to the contrary !

They are making room for the Hussars, who are due to take over the Redford Barracks, almost immediately . XXXX They are taking their--

--pets with them. XXXX Are they downhearted ? XXXX The answer is positively in the negative !
