

TITLE:- BARKING.

Picture:- It's not to be wondered at if many of the citizens--

--of Barking suffer, a little, from swelled heads from now on. XXXX For the Prince--

--is here to assist at the ceremony of raising the town from an--

--Urban District to the standing of a Borough. XXXX A dream come true--

--at last ! XXXX

CHEERS TO END OF SHOT.

The more serious of his duties completed, His Royal Highness attends a performance of--

--a pageant of history of Barking, through the centuries, right up to the presentday.

A big crowd joins its cheers with those of the players --

--when Queen Elizabeth presents a market charter to the town.

Prince George watches the unfolding of Barking's story with great--

--interest. XXXX The dramatic episodes are staged on a lavish scale, contrived to make everyone--

--"sit up and take notice" of the new borough, if only for its historic--

--associations. XXXXX The finale of the--

--pageant brings the story right up-to-the-minute, for the Mayor receives the new Charter from the Spirit of Youth,--

--while the People of All Ages kneel in homage to the newly constituted Borough of Barking.

AND SO, FOR THE PRESENT, I LEAVE YOU !
