

138544-C

(1).

TITLE.:- SILVER FOX SHOW.

Picture.:- It is the first show of live silver foxes ever held in London. XXXX

I don't quite know why they call them silver foxes, for they are mostly black.

I rather suspect that they're named "silver because much gold represents their value! XXXX

After tying the jaws of the exhibits as a "safety-first" measure, they are given a brush - a reversal--
--of the usual practice, when Mr. Fox gives his brush, or has it taken from him!

Breeding these animals is now quite an important industry in this country, and saves a lot of--

--money from going abroad. XXXX This fellow is worth about two hundred pounds!

My hat! She must love 'em! I somehow don't think "live" furs will ever be the fashion in our time !!