

THE "PRESENT" SITUATION. :- How the General Post Office dealt with the great Christmas mail rush.

- London-

Picture. :- All the depressing talk about the adverse trade balance, the falling pound, January the First tax, and what-not, doesn't--

--stop this. These are tons and tons of Christmas presents being sorted at Mount Pleasant. Thousands of people have first packed up their troubles, and then packed up their gifts and felt happier for it. Now the surprises are --

--on their way to Jane, or Flo, or Gladys, or Tom, or Dick, or Harry. Difficult to--

--recognise yours amongst this lot, but I expect it's there somewhere ! In fact I am sure it is !

Or it may be here ! A card ! A beautiful thought winged towards you by your kinsman,--

--friend, or lover, and carried by this tremendous organisation, sorted by these untiring--

--workers, stamped and passed on, until the rat-tat of the postman--

--sends a thrill down your back. Well, Christmas--

--comes but once a year. I wouldn't mind if it came twice ! It's January the 1st I don't like !
