PRINCE GEORGE AT BRITTON - His Royal Highness opens extension to Church Army Home.

-London-

Picture:- This is a shelter and home for men down on their--

--luck. Genuine cases are given food and work. Prince George arrives to--

--open the new extension which raises the accommodation from 35 to--

--135 persons. It's a great work--

--and often gives new hope to poor souls who-- --have been down to the depths of despair.

The Prince recognises a man who had been leading seaman--

--on the Collingwood when he was a midshipman. His Highness tries his prentice hand with a cross cut saw, and does quite well, too.

When our luck is in, let's not forget those deserving down-and-outs.
