PICCARD SKI CUP - Sixty ski experts compete for trophy presented by famous scientist.

-Austria-

Picture.:- Nearly a year ago Professor Piccard went up five miles--

--skywards above the air belt into the stratosphere.
He came--

--down on a glacier near this-- --place, and was rescued by the Alpine dwellers. In gratitude for his-- --escape he presented the Piccard Ski Cup. Sixty of-- --Europe's most famous ski experts take part in-- --the race for this trophy down the ten thousand foot high mountain. Their speed often--

--rises to 40 dangerous--

--miles per hour. It's the chance of broken bones--

--against a silver cup and the honour of-- --winning it. Here's the finish, and out of this field of--

--renowned jumpers a local boy gets first place and provides the tiny mountain village-- --with the thrill of its lonely life. Yesterday unknown, to-day--

--a record holder famous in sports circles throughout Europe. Well, that's life !
