NON-STOP TO THE CAPE - Giant R.A.F. Fairley-Hapier monoplane to attempt world's long distance flight record. -Cranwell, Lines.-

Picture.:- To create a new record by flying from London to Cape Town--

--is the aim of Squadron-Leader Gayford and Flight Lieutenant Bett.

Tests of great severity have been made on the--

--machine by Air Force experts, and the take-off and start need no longer be delayed. The plane is all dressed up, even to spats, apparently, and has seven thousand miles to go. For seventy hours the continuous drone of the engine--

--will be heard in the skies as it speeds over seas, plains, and mountain peaks. The non-stop record is now held by America for a flight-- --of 8000 miles from New York to Constantinople. Well, good flying, and good luck to Britain's bid!
