A NAVAL OCCASION - Crown Prince and Princess of Italy visit the British Mediterranean Fleet at Naples.

-Italy-

Picture:- The Bay of Naples has been en-fete lately !

The fifty-eight ships of our Mediterranean Fleet have-- --been paying a visit to this Italian beauty spot.

In turn the Fleet is honoured by a visit--

--from Their Royal Highnesses Prince Humbert and Princess Marie-Jose, who are received by Admiral Sir Alfred Chatfield. On--

--the deck of the flag-ship "Queen Elizabeth", the royal--

--visitors review the great war ship's complement of marines and--

--blue jackets. Their Highnesses are very much impressed by the-- --ship's appointments and fighting gear, and frequently expressed pleasure--

--during the inspection. The royal members of the house of Savoy take their leave of the Admiral and staff, while the Marine infantry render military honours. After that-- --the crew gets shore leave and are reviewed by the dark eyed signorini.
