SMALLEST COAL MINE - The most northerly and tiniest colliery in Great Britain produces 400 tons per week.

-Brora, Scotland-

Picture.:- The craze to-day is for something bigger than ever before ! For a change, here is something on-- --the small side -- the smallest coal mine. It is far up among the Scottish hills at Brora, Sutherlandshire, 90 miles north of--

--Inverness. The staff numbers only about thirty men,--

--and they get just as black as they would in larger-- --pits. For many years a water wheel provided the driving power.

HOOPER EFFECT.

That's a day ! With the new electrical plant twenty-five tons --

--of coal have been sent up ! Well, now for-- --a few hours of daylight and fresh air before swallowing their night-caps ! An old Scottish custom !
