

ASCOT SUNDAY - - A day on the river - a fitting finale to the glories of Ascot Week. Boulter's Lock.

Picture.:- Ascot Week closes its brilliance with a fine Ascot Sunday !

Rather dull, but gay dresses shame heavy skies, and almost make up for the sun's shyness. Boulter's Lock keeps up its reputation for crowds. Boats squeeze through with creaks and groans which noises are--

--drowned by laughter and song from a thousand light-- hearted pie-nickers. The river reaches are alive with small craft. . These are--

--looked down on, and occasionally swamped, by the popular river steamers. An echo of pre-war gaiety !
Not quite so gay as in past days, but old customs die hard !
