

2-04P 851

GOING UP ! Air Chief Marshal Sir John M. Salmond inspects Flight Cadets on their "passing out" of Cranwell. -Lincolnshire-

Picture. On completing their course of training at Cranwell, the Flight cadets are inspected by Air Chief Marshal Sir John--

--M. Salmond before passing out of the college to take a fuller part in the-- --work of the Royal Air Force. These young soldiers are the envy of the Guards. Watch the extraordinary precision and finish of their movements on parade !, while Sir John Salmond--

--takes the salute. As exact as a controlled machine !

It's easy to see that strict discipline is a feature of the college training. The Air Force should be glad to add this lot to its strength.
578 Cadets of the College have already been granted commissioned rank. It's about the only college which encourages men with ambitions towards a high life !