REPLACING THE GUARDS - The Royal Sussex Regiment relieve the Coldstreams of guard duties at the royal palaces.

-St. James's Palace-

Picture.:- The first Battalion Royal Sussex Regiment, putting their very best feet forward, arrive at St. James's Palace to take over the guarding of the Royal palaces. In the-- --absence of Their Majesties, the Coldstream Guards take the opportunity of leaving for the country and camp. The exchange takes place with full ceremonial.

The Palace keys are handed over to the Officer of-- --the new Guard, and the Coldstreams march off to collect their sentries as the Sussex men-- --arrive at each point. A Royal Sussex sentry takes over from a relieved sentry--

--of the Guards. Meantime the Colours are being paraded before an admiring crowd of interested Londoners and-- --visitors. The last Royal Guardsman leaves, and the Palace is under the-- --proud protection of the Royal Sussex. See you in camp, Coldstreams !
