

2-19401951

BRAVO, JIM! - Welcome home to Mr. J. A. Mollison, hero of the first solo east-to-west transAtlantic flight.

-Southampton-

Picture:- As the ermine-white "EMPRESS OF BRITAIN" makes her majestic progress up the Solent,--

--an almost royal welcome greets her. Aeroplanes dive in salute, and sirens--

--hoot gleefully - - for among her passengers is Jim--

--Mollison, the courageous airman who, solitary in a-- --light plane flew the vast--

--Atlantic. Amy's - - er, Mrs. Mollison's - - smile looks freer,--

--now that he is beside her. Yes, what a filthy day!

The weather is anything but cheerful! There's the little piece--

--of modern magic which enabled the young birdman to capture-- --the imagination and admiration of the world. The-- --trip cheated Amy - er, Mrs. Mollison - - out of a-- --slice of her honeymoon, but that--

--can be remedied now. Happy days! You've both earned them!