Picture.:- British holiday makers go back to the land.
Over six hundred members--

--of the Great Britain and Ireland Camping Club gather on their newly--

--acquired ground at East Horsley, for their annual Feast of the Lanterns.

Ah ! Milking time in camp is very popular !
A quart please !

And then an alfresco breakfast under canvas.
This little shot extends--

--over ten acres of pleasant grass land, and comprises-- a lake of three acres for boating and swimming.

Various kinds of outdoor sports are played.

Towards evening lanterns are distributed, and when dusk falls two thousand--

--twinkling lights gleam over the camp, transforming it into a constellation of vari-coloured moons.

This year over three thousand members have used this ground. The camp veteran is a gentleman of eighty years of age, and still going strong. Well, boys will be boys !
