"ROYAL" FOR 100 YEARS - - At Woking, the Royal Warwickshire Regiment celebrates centenary of honour conferred by King William IV.

-Surrey-

---

Picture.:- William IV was responsible for this ceremony being observed. One hundred years ago His Late Majesty directed that the 6th Regiment of Foot should be permitted to bear the appellation "royal", and to be in future--

--styled The Royal First Warwickshire Regiment, and ever since this has been so. This Regiment is one of those which was originally raised to-- --fight in the Dutch service. It was recalled to help William of Orange overthrow the monarchy of--

--James II. Those were the days--

--when they did that sort of thing. The Colours being trooped to-day were presented to the Battalion-- --in October, 1859, at Gibraltar. The ceremonial parade is under the--

--command of Lieutenant-Colonel W.A.T. Bowley, and General Sir Robert D. Wigham. The--

--Colonel of the Regiment takes the salute, as the Battalion marches past. This impressive--- --military event, and the warm sunshine attracts-- --many people to the--

--Woking Barracks on an ideal mild October morning.
