

ENGLAND EXPECTS - - Britain pays tribute to the immortal memory of Nelson on 127th anniversary of Trafalgar. London-

Picture.:- To-day is Nelson's Day ! 127 years have passed since he shattered the forces-- --which threatened England's security. Lady Lloyd, wife of the Navy League's President, lays a wreath--

--at the foot of the victor's monument, set-- --in the Empire's heart. The Right-Honourable Stanley Bruce shows that Australia remembers the valiant Admiral who triumphed--

--over the Franco-Spanish fleet, and laid the foundations of Britain's sea--

--power. Canada, too, sends her respects to the immortal--

--and heroic dead, as do all the countries--

--which show red on the map of the world.

SUB TITLE.

At Portsmouth, the cynosure of all eyes is the Admiral's old flag-ship "The Victory", in which he faced the-- --combined navys of France and Spain, and made the name of Trafalgar a subject--

--for the inspiration of poets and singers all over the country. On the deck of this famous ship gather the present generation of sea-fighters to honour him who made war only to win peace. An officer places a wreath on-- --the actual spot where Admiral Horatio Nelson fell--

--wounded unto death.
