

LORD MAYOR'S SHOW - - 1952.

3-FB1921

Picture :- It's a dull, misty day for London's great show. Do Londoners care? They do not! They--

--stand for hours in their hundreds of thousands as--

--they have done for years, and years, and more years. The Royal Navy is going strong as usual,--

--and British pianos get a B.B.C. "boost" !

Sort of "British pianos rule the wireless waves !"

Social services and industries which make--

--London the centre of the world are all represented.

The Ancient Order of Druids shows how it--

--makes money from tin-foil. And good money too !, which goes to assist the City's hospitals.

---

London glove-makers' products are known on every hand the-- --world over. Well, it's all good for trade. Lots of flags coming along ! It's--

--the - - yes ! - - the British Legion, representing Greater London's branches of the Association. One can almost hear the regular clink of scores of honourable decorations hardly won, as they move to the rhythm of marching feet. Old Bill, the 'bus which did service on the Western Front accompanies many men who rode in it.

The cars showing old and new methods of printing, composing, etc. are a direct compliment to the new Lord Mayor, Sir Percy Greenaway, who is a--

--prominent figure in the industry. His coach draws up at St. Botolph's Church, Bishopsgate.

(REELS FOR TWO SHOTS).

From the senior Warden of the Church Sir--

Percy has just received an address of congratulation upon his accession to the City's highest office. Everybody seems very enthusiastic to-day. I saw one small boy--

--nearly fall out of a window while trying to throw a streamer over--

--the golden coach. Well, lots of us felt nearly like that, but didn't dare try it.
