

TIME FROM THE AIR - - First screen pictures of enormous clock, designed to assist airmen, installed at Heston Air Port.

Picture.:- Before this clock was built, if an air pilot forgot to set his watch prior-- --to going up, he couldn't ask a--

--policeman, so he had to come down again. Once the clock--

--is set, pilots can tell the time from the height of three-- --thousand feet. It's forty-seven feet across ! Over three-- --thousand square feet of dial. What a clock ! We shall soon see what it looks like--

--from the air. This is taken from one thousand feet up, and a cold wind blowing, too ! Brrh ! We have now been up about-- --six minutes, and since we took--

--off, the clock minute hand has travelled nearly two yards. Goes fast, but keeps exact time ! Work that out !
