He hasn't quite done that yet, but you are watching the start of--

--the thirty-four thousandth, three hundredth and sixty seventh mile. Supported by a few--

--thousand brother cyclists, Mr.A.A.Humbles does this spectacular mile to dispose of the record made in 1911--

--by Marcel Planes. He rode only thirty-four thousand,

--three hundred and 66 miles. Mr. Humbles is-- --not yet content. He wants to do thirty-six thousand before his year--

--is out. Compensations now appear ! A laurel wreath for the victor, and a kiss for the-- --wee girlie. And that's not all ! His feat is--

--honoured by Sir Malcolm Campbell who presents him with a cup--

--to the accompaniment of cheers from the crowd. Mr.Humbles started on this adventure because he was--

--unemployed, but ambitious. He decided to demonstrate the reliability of--

--British goods, especially British cycles. A plucky feat ! Bravo !
