TRAFFIC LIGHTS OF THE SEA - Winter fails to stop the work of replacing weather-worn life-buoys along the coast of Maine.
- In the Atlantic -

---

Picture:- Maintenance of light for sea-going traffic is -- -- an extensive work. There are thousands upon thousands of these huge buoys which -- -- have to be looked after and replaced from -- -- time to time. They are the -- -- <sup>point</sup>bound duty cops of the sea. Maybe you have wondered why they don't wander --
-- off duty sometimes. This is the reason, they stay <sup>up</sup> <sup>pu</sup> under the gentle persuasion of a couple of tons of granite, and a half a mile or so of <sup>iron</sup> shackles! (EFFECTS)

EFFECTS

This old one will be taken ashore to have a dry shampoo and a hair-cut! It needs it!
