Picture.:- A sweepstake for the country's orphans !
The Cuban Government provides food and clothing--

--and homes for parentless kiddies out of the-- --ratepayers' pockets. And the citizens don't even grumble.

In fact they like it !

Spare cash of any amount is used to--
--buy a numbered ball or a share of--
--one. A percentage--
--is deducted for the--
--orphans, and the pot is divided into prizes.

Out of this cage drops a--
--large or small--
--fortune for the lucky drawer.

Influential citizens form a committee--
--to see that the game--
--is played fair, and orphans--
--read out the numbers--
--and the prizes. But it's no--
--game for Merrie England.
