Picture.:- On this lovely afternoon, St. Margaret's, Westminster, sees the culmination of a romance in high society.

(VOICES).

The principals are Mr. W. H. Ferguson, R. H. A., and Miss Rosalie Cory, daughter of Sir Herbert and Lady Cory, of Cardiff. The sunlight glinting on the bride's satin gown, and the breeze making fantastic patterns with her veil and train, together with the bridegroom's uniform with its gold braid, make an arresting picture. The best man is Lord Burghley, also in uniform.

(VOICES).

A feature of this wedding is the couple's escort of eleven bridesmaids; an odd number to bring good luck. They--

--are wearing white lace and mittens, and carrying bouquets of pink--

--carnations. Distinguished guests and unknown onlookers alike wish the pair all happiness and good luck.
