"FELL" WORK - - British "lumber-Jacks" put in some strenuous work cutting down mighty oak trees at Langley Park, Slough.

-Bucks-

Picture.:- The British oak has done a lot for England at--
--one time and another. Little ships of British oak easily outelassed--

--the Spanish mahogany ones of the boasted Armada.

It's still doing its bit towards banishing depression.

At Langley Park, Slough, there's 'fell' work going on !

Get clear, and hold your breath ! (CRASH). The trees are being--

--cut down for building purposes, and many --

--of them will go to France and--

--help our export trade. (CRASH). They are from--

--two to three hundred years old, and will supply--

--three hundred feet of good oak planks and beams, or seven times as-

--much veneer for furniture. It seems a pity that these majestic trees must disappear--

--from the English park-lands. The bigger the tree, the louder the crash ! (CRASH). Forests and financiers have that much in common !
