

2844P51

UNDER THE WEATHER ! Overflow of the River Derwent causes considerable inconvenience over wide area, in Yorkshire.

Stanford Bridge-

Picture :- A competition between various counties, as to whose flood is the best and biggest, is entered by Yorkshire. Lots of dry-land--

--houses are now boasting charming lakeside views from every window with good boating and fishing.

The River Derwent has turned ordinary plain streets into Venetian-like waterways, where romantic--

--bakers deliver bread impaled on long toasting forks through--

--bedroom windows. This is an optimistic threshing machine looking for something to thresh. What about the weather clerk ?

One bright spot in the depression !

The new Inn serves beer in the-- --old way, and a bright motorist wades in for another pint before adventuring further.

Yorkshire is a very wet county. But this shows that strong efforts have been made to lift the depression.