

VIEWING THE JUMPS - - Thousands visit the Aintree course and inspect the obstacles to be negotiated by competitors in the Grand National.

-Liverpool-

Picture:- Morbid crowds, including myself, wander round the GRAND NATIONAL course, to look at the grave of their hopes. Beechers --

--Brook has a special attraction. It's not far from the--

--start, but it's often the finish of your bet.
In a second--

--or so, this brook and the jump generally provide book-makers with enough-- --fat cigars to last for a whole year. If your--

--horse does manage to get over that one, this is the next ambush.

When my friend cheerily remarked that 'somebody must win', I pointed out that my name wasn't 'somebody'.

Valentine's Brook is another popular getting-off place. Never mind, good luck !, everybody ! Somebody must - - urcha ! - -
