THE CRUISING GRAZE - - Eight-hundred schoolchildren make a merry party as they set out for a holiday trip to Gibraltar and Morocco.
-Liverpool-

Picture.:- Children used to follow in the footsteps of their-- --parents, but now they follow in their wake by taking up cruising.

All these excited noisy youngsters, nine-hundred of them, are taking a trip--

--to Gibraltar, Madeira and Morocco, together with a few tons of baggage.

The food supply includes a thousand gallons of ice-cream, and two tons of--

--chocolates, and the voyage includes the rolling Bay of Biscay.

(HOOTER). The ship's just casting off !

What an adventure for them ! Yet I doubt if-- --their thrill will be any greater than--

--their parents felt years ago on their first steam-boat--

--excursion to Margate or Southend chaperoned by Aunt Jemimah. But modern--

--children are taught to take the long view.
