"PAGAN PILGRIMAGE"

Despite protests against

"paganism" people from all over Scotland pay annual visit to the Wishing Well of Culloden.

-Near Inverness-

Picture.:-

Here is a May Day demonstration which has caused some little trouble. All these people are going to the-- --old Glooty Well, near Culloden Moor. It is said one drops a coin in the well,--

--drinks, makes a wish - - and the wish comes true !
That's a part--

--of the trouble. Some folks say that it's a--

--pagan custom. The other trouble --

--is that to-day is the "Sawbath". Not at all the sort of day--

--to do this sort of thing !

Be that as it may ! All these Scottish people - - Scots - mind you, actually throw money--

--down the well, drink and wish. They also--

--hang scraps of clothing on the Glooty Tree, because that's all--

--a part of the pagan rite. By the way, the money is recovered later--

--and handed over to the Scottish charities. Very interesting - Sorry - - but I mustn't take sides !
