Picture. :-

This introduces Bert Assirati, Britain's heavy-weight champion of all-in wrestling, and Half-Nelson Keys, one of Britain's strongest men, who--

--has accepted the champion's challenge to all comers. All-in wrestling means that the men go 'all-out' to win. Perhaps you have already noticed it ! (PAUSE).
(PAUSE).

The alternatives to winning are giving up, or being killed. Very simple !

Notice also that the referee mostly keeps outside the Ring !

Ah ! A critical moment this ! (BREATHING EFFECT).

The absence of rules is a good idea ! No worry about what to do,--

--or how to do it. There's a beauty ! (PAUSE) Missed him !
(BREATHING EFFECT).
(EFFECT)

Why, you can't see better--

--than this in darkest Africa ! Now here's a pretty trick ! Get hold of the toes and force them and the leg backwards. It's very effective ! (PAUSE). Of course, it's an agonising pain, but what does this matter !

The object is to win anyhow. A sprained ligament, or a few broken bones are--

--a detail to real gladiators like these. Bert Assirati retains--

--the title, and with his public looks forward with real pleasure to the next pleasant evening.
