Crowds at the Kentucky Derby on tip-toe with excitement to see--

--the start of--

--America's most famous horse-race. Thirteen beautiful three-year-olds fighting for a fifty-thousand dollar purse, and all the honour and glory which go with it. "INDIAN", and "GOOD ADVICE" take the leading place at the first turn, with "HEAD PLAY", the favourite, close behind. The favourite is tenaciously hanging on the quarters of the two leaders. (PAUSE).

Now an outsider, "BROKER'S TIP" slips through and takes the lead. Then a sensation! "HEAD PLAY'S" jockey thinks he's being fouled. He leans over to "BROKER'S TIP", and hauls at his saddle cloth. The other jockey strikes back with a slash and at that moment, "BROKER'S TIP" passes the post a nose in front--

--and is declared the winner. That ends one of the most amazing scenes ever witnessed in a classic turf event.
