Picture. :-

Hadleigh, a small village in Suffolk, has a big idea--

--of itself to-day. Squadron-Leader Gayford, hero of the long distance non-stop flight, arrives home, so that--

--Hadleigh is justified in feeling properly on the map. An illuminated address from the-- --proud villagers will be a most cherished memento in the Gayford household.

(PAUSE).

The procession to escort the famous pilot to-- --his house is a revelation in what village organisation can achieve. If there are any natives-- --not present, it's because they're bed-ridden, or in Timbuctoo. British Legionnaires haul the car along the streets to the accompaniment --

--of cheers for the intrepid adventurer of the air.
