

H.M.S. Iron Duke - Famous battleship demonstrates methods of modern warfare for benefit of officers of Imperial Defence College.
- Off Portsmouth -

Picture: Officers of the Imperial Defence College are today to-- --be given a demonstration of methods of modern warfare.

Destroyers, aeroplanes and submarines will--

--develop an attack upon His Majesty's Ship Iron Duke, who will defend herself as she--

--is equipped to do. During the-- --Great War, she was Earl Jellicoe's Flag ship for two years.

For this demonstration--

--officers of the Duke of Wellington's Regiment come--

--to see their namesake ship fight.

Since 1929, this warship has been employed--

--as gunnery ship in home waters. Imperial Defence College--

--officers watch the 13.5's being--

--swung in readiness to repel the anticipated attack.

Torpedo-carrying aeroplanes begin to operate against the--

--ship. PAUSE.

Submarines stand by prepared to submerge and attack from below the surface.

There goes a torpedo, slipping into the water like a diving snake. PAUSE.

Torpedo destroyers manoeuvre for range and position prior to delivering the goods.

Sailors explain to the soldiers that torpedoes are expensive-- toys and those used for practice purposes have to be saved in the interests of--

2-17-21

economy. The officers of the battle cruiser decide-- --that the time is ripe for replying. The guns find direction and speak. Noisy beasts they are too !

EFFECTS.

EFFECTS.

EFFECTS.

EFFECTS.

EFFECTS.

EFFECTS.

The College officers are now better acquainted with imitation--

--sea fighting. We hope they like it !