It is fashionable to have kings and queens of everything nowadays, although poker players prefer aces.

Youthful buglers, with not much blow--

--herald the approach of the Railway Queen, who is to welcome the Coal King - - pardon ! - - King Coal for 1933. The throne of-- --these carbonised royalties is hewn from a huge lump of coal over six feet high from Wigan. (PAUSE) Dancers entertain the Queen--

--and a crowd of her Manchester subjects.

The new King Coal. Charles Kenny is the 'Merry Old Soul' for this year,--

--with an equipped rescue party as body guard.

He has worked at the coal-- --face for thirty years. The royal ring on his finger,--

--and he's a 'miner' king, and regrettably--

--an unemployed one. Let's hope that the future will bring him and his workless mates greater prosperity.
