"SAPPERS" AT WORK - - Bridge-building and mining are features of the annual training of Royal Engineers territorials.

Picture.

The Sappers unit of the Royal Engineers seldom needs recruiting shows to keep it up to strength.
The work is varied,--

--novel, and full of interest. Building an aerial ropeway--

--is only one of the many jobs to be done.

And there's a free ride at the end of it.
If the line doesn 't break, all will be joyful !

Well, not so joyful as all that ! Hi ! You--

--fellows ! Somebody's reeking the boat !
Steward, stop the ship.

Bridge problems are tackled-- out

--with the aid of Mr. Eley Culbertson, and the results are more useful. This particular species is designed for landing troops. Whatever they are designed for--

--they are jelly gadgets to practice with in peace-time, and here's hoping that will be their most important--

--job. One other remark before we leave the Camp.

(EFFECT) And with a bang that takes me off !
