NAVY "SHOWS" OFF - - Dockyardsthrown open to visitors in effort to raise funds for naval charities.

-Chatham and Portsmouth

Picture.:-

The forbidding gates of Chatham Dockyard are opened-- --to the owners of the British Navy - - you, and me, and us !

There is 'Hermes', the aircraft carrier just back from China The Navy--

--Week shows us where Jack Tar lives and works. Thousands enter the innards--

--of a submarine for the first time. Jack--

--Tar shows he can be gallant in peace as well as war.
And all the nice girls show they love a sailor. That concludes a minor naval engagement.

(SONG EFFECT).

This sort of thing, I mean the Navy Week show is also in progress at Portsmouth and Devonport. And here is a glimpse of Portsmouth Dockyard.

Under the shadow of menacing--

--guns stroll the people who they protect. Contrasted with the fearsome--

--engines of war are the humours of peace-time service.
"Crossing the line" ceremony ! It's a sort of sea-going--

--version of Sweeney Todd, the Barber ! Who's next for a shave ?

Navy Week gives close-up views of our supreme silent Service.
