

GOING DOWN? Recruits of Neroda Falls Forestry Camp invent new way of getting the thrills of tobogganing - - without the the toboggan !

This picture demands an explanation. These fellows are getting a--

--pasteing, but not in the usual sense. The seats of -- --their trousers are being re-inforced with paraffin-- --wax for glacier tobogganing, without toboggans. The ironing board is most necessary. That iron is plenty hot.

And now comes the thrill ! Hurting--

--down 600-feet of-- --ice slide. If the friction causes that-- --paraffin wax to catch fire ! Talk about hearts melting with compassion. Somebody seems to have salted the slide at the bottom. It's rough going and rougher stopping !

No, they can't walk back ! Exposure to the cold winds is liable to bring on tooth-ache, so they just slide modestly back to camp, and prepare to glide into the tailor's repair shop. It will be awfully awkward if it's early closing day !
