Perry and Crawford meet for the Davis Cup finals at Long Island. Although-- --America's lost her chance, she's--

--not lost her interest. Perry is at this side of the net. This spectacle is a change for tennis enthusiasts over the other side. It's an--

--all-British final, with America--

--supplying the courts, the audience, and the Cup. Perry's dynamic drives are--

--too much for Crawford. He does his best, and a good best, too,--

--but it's not good enough.

It's the first time for thirty years that an American player has not contested--

--the final singles. A record--

--crowd applaud Perry, and Crawford is the first--

--to congratulate his opponent. There's the Cup and it's British--

--for this year. Bravo, Perry ! That's one record America hasn't won !
