

15888-C

THE TURKEY TROT

Picture:- Tons of live turkeys ! Over ten-thousand, all in one crowd. Experts say--

--it's the largest meeting of turkeys ever convened.

They're annoyed ! Their ancient dignity is sullied. A--

--special duty has been passed to protect chickens from unfair foreign dumping,--

--but the turkey has been left out.

We are main British Christmas dinner, they quack !

Is it right for our place to be--

--shared by cheap foreign trash, and our price--

--brought down. As the poultry-yard aristocrats, it's an insult.

However, in a good cause, they submit to being sold, and driven in hundreds along the-

--main streets of Attelborough, Norfolk. Those interested can now observe the subtle points of difference between the goose-step and the turkey-trot. From now, until Christmas--

--they're going to "eat, drink and be merry". That gate nearly tweaked their tails. Then their next public appearance--

--will be outside the poulterers, looking very forlorn, and most frightfully naked.