MOVING DAY.

Picture.:- Even railway bridges have their moments. It's moving day--

--for this one. The dismantling of the old, and the placing of the new has--

--to be done in a day, too ! If it isn't done, hundreds of people will be late--

--at the office. Traffic--

--from a highly respectable suburb will be - - well, it just won't be ! And it has to be done--

--on Sunday. If you believe in the Sabbath being--

--a day of rest, it's the railway authorities you must complain to - not me !

The last girder has been erected and the--

--new bridge is ready to get into position and start its job.

It moves on ball-bearings. Being about two-hundred tons weight--

--and Carnera being absent, it has to be moved--

--by inches. By Sunday evening it is in position. New bridges for old--

--in 24 hours. A fine engineering feat. Early trains will positively run--

--as usual. (Curse it !) So don't be late in the morning.
