

THE BIG MIX-UP. -7-

2219951

Picture:- Millions of sweepstake tickets move in brilliant procession to the Plaza, Dublin, for mixing.

All Dublin people get something for their--
--ten shillings anyway. Even if it's only looking--
--at this pageant of chance. The Plaza decorations are equally--
--wonderful. Paintings of horsemen through the ages, including UNIVERSAL'S rough-rider film-star - Tox Mix.

All these girls are good mixers. Like women the world over, they held many a man's--

--fortune in the hollow of their hands, or, will, very soon. In these trucks--

--are the millions of counterfoils, sent by hopeful gamblers from all over the world. With ten shillings in good money, and a comic name as a lucky charm.

Millions will be disappointed. Comparatively few--
--will be the envy of the losers. Just look--
--what they are doing with your ticket. You can't expect--
--anyone to find it after--
--it has been messed about like that.

Something like two million pounds to be distributed. Gives me a--

--headache to think of it, and a headache--

--is about all you, and I and your neighbour will get out of it. Oh, I forgot the real money is to help the Irish Hospitals, to which statement a noble Duke replies "Oh Yeah!" Or something to that effect.
