

BACK TO BONNIE SCOTLAND.

Picture.:-

The Scots Greys return to their native land. It is now four years since they have trodden--

--crisp Scottish heather. Well, there's no place like home, and--

--there's no place like Scotland to a Scot. There's the-- --only Scots Grey, who dares to parade with a black eye.

They have just come from Tidworth--

--and they're on their way to Redford Barracks, Colinton. The Greys are the-- --only Scottish Cavalry Regiment, and moreover--

--their ranks are recruited only from Scotland.. Competition for enlistment will certainly be keen, as only twenty-five men will be--

--accepted. The regiment's immortality was assured when an enemy general--

--described them as "more like angels than men". He must have meant avenging angels. After --

--a dry march, a drink ! The men will get their bucketful later.
