

WORTH THEIR WEIGHT IN GOLD

Picture.:-

Taking a snap out of a fox's jaw. They have to be groomed before being--

--judged, and if precautions are not taken, somebody will be a finger short !

There's a lovely brush ! A tail which makes most women thrill !, although the hero--

--is a 'foxy' fellow. The Show of the British Silver Fox--

--Breeders' Association includes exhibits of three-hundred live dog-foxes, whose pelts--

--are valued at something like twenty-thousand pounds. Expert judges--

--of fur have a busy day deciding--

--upon the fineness of a very fine lot. Scores of luxuriant animals--

--lay on the tables hanging their tails behind them.

Soon most of these male fur coats will--

--be hanging round women's necks, caressing their shoulders,

--tickling their chins and offering them protection against a--

--hard winter. Silver foxes, with golden opportunities.
