JEWRY REMEMBERS.

Picture.:-

Almost every part of Britain sends contingents to the great Jewish Ex-Service Men's Remembrance Service, held on the Horse Guards--

--Parade. Admiral Sir Roger Keyes inspects the men. Jewish people, like those of other races, not-- --forgetting their women folk, did valiant work in the Great War, and a modest card on--

--one of the Cenotaph wreaths reminds us of at least two Jews whose deeds won--

--Victoria Crosses, and who died dreadfully in the winning of them. Even in the midst of political turmoil, these things should be remembered.
