COLONEL THE PRINCE.

Picture.:-

Under the grim walls of Dover Castle, whose windows--
--keep watch over the narrows of the English Channel, the Prince of Wales arrives to inspect the First Seaforth Highlanders.

His Royal Highness is the Regiment's Colonel-in-Chief.
The Battalion is familiarly known as the Rossshire--

--Buffs, and also as the Duke of Albany's regiment. This Royal--

--inspection is the fore-runner of the troops' departure for Palestine. That being so, to-day's weather--

--should be the worst they will see for some time.
The sun used to shine quite a-- --lot in Palestine. I suppose it still does !

In any case they will get a warm-- --welcome. The wiggle and the waggle of the-- --kilts is usually a popular sight. Well, there will soon be some real Scotsmen in Palestine !
