WORLD BOXING CHAMPIONSHIP.

Picture.:-

The great night has arrived, and Ginger Foran pits--

--his punches against Jackie Brown's fists and foot work. Upon this match depends--

--the world's flyweight titles, presently held by Brown. Foran has started by attacking fast and fiercely. The Manchester man's tricky tactics give Ginger little chance to land dangerous blows. Brown frequently connects with quick jarring hits--

--to the jaw. Foran shakes his head and keeps on keeping on. Both men are putting--

--up a magnificent show of really--

--good ringcraft. Brown's job is not easy, but he's used to battles of this kind, and is--

--going 'all-out' to retain his titles. He's now constantly attacking, and gives his challenger no rest. Foran's pluck is a--

--quality to be admired. He's fighting a magnificent, but I'm afraid a losing--

--battle. Brown is declared the victor after a wonderful display of boxing on both sides. Foran has gone down--

--like a hero, and Jackie Brown is still flyweight champion of the world - - and deserves to be !
