ROYAL TOUR.
DUKE OF GLOUCESTER IN LANCASHIRE.
INTEREST IN BOYS' CLUBS.
-Lancashire-

Picture.:- A red-letter day for Liverpool. H.R.H. The Duke--
--of Gloucester starts his Lancashire tour by visiting the-- --"Dinner Hour" Club, where working--
--boys are supplied with roast beef and two veg, or similar sustenance at a very-- --low price. The Duke's next call--
--is to open the Morris-Green Boys' Club. The boys themselves built this Club--
--for themselves. And a great job they have-- --made of it. They had to break all the speed rules of the bricklayers' union to-- --get the premises finished in time for His Royal Highness--
--to set the seal on their work by a royal-- --opening. Outdoor club work also receives attention. The Duke shakes hands with-- --a team of unemployed boys. By-- --way of acknowledgment the boys-- --stage a footer match for-- --the benefit of the Duke and his party. The-- --whole Royal Tour is to generally--
--advance the excellent work of the National Boys' Clubs movement.
