

140505-2

THE KING'S LEVEE.

PAGEANTRY IN THE MALL.
ROYAL PROGRESS TO ST. JAMES PALACE.
-London-

Picture.:-

BAND - two shots.

The pageantry of the King's Levee--
--is a spectacle of which the public never grows tired.
His Majesty's judges, diplomats,--
--officers of his military and naval forces attend at the Palace--
--of St. James's to await the coming of their Sovereign.
The previous Levee cavalcade was spoiled by rain, but today the sun shines on the glittering accoutrements --
--of the King's household cavalry. Heads are bared as the Royal--
--coach passes up the Mall to the Palace. It's the last Levee of the season.
Watch this perfect evolution of the lining up of the Guards. No wonder small boys always worship these brilliantly disciplined men and horses of war.
His Majesty wears a black crepe arm-band in mourning for--
--Queen Emma of the Netherlands, and as he passes--
--his people murmur 'God Save the King'.